INITIAL ASSESSMENT CLASSIFICATIONS DEFINED

In general, sex or gender-based discrimination refers to being adversely treated or affected, either intentionally or unintentionally, in relationship has ended and the respondent is excessively texting, calling and following the complainant requesting to continue their sexual relationship.

	Retaliation. Adverse action taken against a person participating in a sex or gender-based discrimination report or investigation because of that participation.
	Reports determined to be either not sexual or gender-based in nature. In these cases, interim measures (if appropriate) are made available to the complainant and the issue is forwarded to the appropriate department for action.
	To ensure equal access for pregnant individuals, the university provides reasonable accommodations and adjustments related to pregnancy and childbirth. University policy and federal and state law prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex and pregnancy in the university's programs and activities. Specific accommodations are handled on a case-by-case basis and depend on medical need and individual requirements. A few examples of reasonable pregnancy accommodations include excusing absences from class missed due to pregnancy-related medical conditions and appointments, flexibility in the administration of exams, and providing access to accessible parking.
